In Alan Massie's deeply insightful play we find Sir Walter Scott at his most vulnerable. With wit, bite, candour and some unexpected turns, he tells us his own story.

After a hugely successful Scottish tour, Rowan Tree Theatre Company bring The Ragged Lion and Sir Walter Scott back to his home at Abbotsford, for two unique and intimate performances in the house that he built and loved. It is fitting that Scott returns to us now, to reveal the inner workings of his mind as he faced financial ruin, as we have just launched a major campaign to save Abbotsford for the benefit of current and future generations.

These performances of The Ragged Lion will support the £10 million campaign to save Abbotsford. This will see the house and estate restored and conserved, and a new visitor centre and education suite created. This will provide much needed interpretation of the complex legacy that Scott has left to us.

These will be intimate performances with limited seats and we advise you to book early to avoid disappointment. Tickets are priced at £20 per person, including welcome drinks and canapés on arrival, a two course buffet and all other drinks during the evening. The evening commences at 7pm and ends at approximately 10pm. There will be chance to meet the cast, director and musicians. Friends of Abbotsford receive a 10% discount on the ticket price (£18 per ticket) and members of the Abbotsford Club attend for free.

Please RSVP using the form provided by Friday 9th April 2010 to:
